Dr Panya Banjoko

Writer, Researcher & Founder of Nottingham Black Archive

In 2008, Dr Panya Banjoko conducted research into the Attitudes and Perceptions of the African Caribbean Community to museums in Nottingham. Her research revealed that African Caribbean people did not feel their history or culture was being represented in Nottingham's museums. As a result, Nottingham Black Archive (NBA) was founded in 2009. NBA is dedicated to researching, collecting and preserving Black history, heritage and culture in Nottingham, from the earliest time to the present day. It holds in its collection some of the earliest documents relating to the formation of Black community organisations in Nottingham: photographs, articles, newsletters, political letters and a growing oral history collection.
